DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Claims 6-9 are withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on January 24, 2007.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 11 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 11 is rejected because it is not clear if the biopolymer is the combination of all of the recited polymers. Clarification and/or correction are required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1 and 10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Claes (US 5,882,787).

Claeys teaches a poly-ε-caprolactone film (see abstract). Claeys teaches that the poly-ε-caprolactone subjected to extrusion is substantially anhydrous and also that the additives (fillers) used in the extrusion be substantially anhydrous (see col. 3, lines 11-14; col. 5, lines 11-12, 37-44). Claeys teaches that the quantity of fillers incorporated into the poly-ε-caprolactone will not exceed 150 parts by weight per 100 by weight poly-ε-caprolactone (see col. 6, lines 5-8). This teaching encompasses the claimed proportions. Claeys teaches the limitations of the claims other than the differences that are discussed below.

Claeys differs from the claims in that he does not specifically teach the limitations regarding the particle size. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to optimize the particle size of the fillers of Claeys through routine experimentation for the best results. As to optimization of results, a patent will not be granted based upon the optimization of result effective variables when the optimization is obtained through routine experimentation unless there is a showing of unexpected results which properly rebuts the prima facie case of obviousness. See In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 276, 205 USPQ 215, 219 (CCPA 1980). See also In re Woodruff, 919 F.2d 1575, 1578, 16 USPQ2d 1934, 1936-37 (Fed. Cir. 1990), and In re Aller, 220 F.2d 454, 456, 105 USPQ 233, 235 (CCPA 1955).

6. Claims 2-5 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest the claimed essentially anhydrous biopolymer and tensile strength.
